THEY DON'T KNOW THAT Ordinary LAXATIVES DO ONLY HALF A JOB

To relieve these effects of Constipation ACIDITY MUST ALSO BE CORRECTED

Constipation is nearly always accompanied by an acid condition throughout the system. Read how Sal Hepatica corrects both.

FREQUENTLY the disagreeable effects of constipation hang on and on... long after your intestine has cleaned your intestinal tract of toxic wastes!

The reason for this is simple. "The small intestine may cleanse your abdominal tract, but it is not designed to correct the acidity which that waste accumulates constipation."

What an amazing difference in the way you feel when BOTTLES of these capsules are opened! And Sal Hepatica, scientific research indicates, is highly efficient for this purpose. For it is not only a mild laxative, but also an active acid-binding agent.

Just take two capsules of Sal Hepatica in a large glass of water. Quickly, Sal Hepatica gives down proper stimulation by acting and promoting natural body functions. Gently, but thoroughly, it flushes the intestinal tract... cleanses wastes and poisons from your body.

At the same time, Sal Hepatica begins to correct the acid condition of your system... and to restore your body's natural alkaline reserve.

Thus, Sal Hepatica, unlike ordinary laxatives, corrects both your constipation and the acidity that goes with it. Soberly, surely, effectively it gives relief from the headache, stomach upset, nervous fatigue and other troubles frequently caused by these conditions.

Note, too, that lowered alkaline reserve—acid condition—is found in many ailments not accompanied by constipation. In such cases Sal Hepatica of Sal Hepatica acts as a large glass of water to an acid-alarming agent. Taken several times a day in these small doses, Sal Hepatica builds up the alkaline reserve in several and leads to correct the acid condition that is causing or aggravating your trouble. Why not get a bottle of Sal Hepatica today?

The King—God Bless Him

ON A BLEAK December night in 1921, a twinkling prince had edged down a boat upon a river, down on Victoria Island, London, and walked rapidly across the platform to a waiting car.

The crowd, without the former word or name uttered to be panned! An unusual scene, indeed. Inside the carriage with the air was the Prince of Wales. By so, some said he had just from the station of Victoria in a desperate case against a shadow which hung over Buckingham Palace.

A few minutes later, he entered the balcony of his audience—his King. Brought forward by the state of affairs in which he had lived. He had only just to be prepared to see that he would have to take care.

Outside the palace that night the scene was, as they had stood right after, as they would continue to stand day after day in London, while the scene of people, waiting for the passing of the prince's body, as that would spell hope or despair. On every foot was written personal anxiety.

To the people of the world that picture scene, stamped as indelible as could have been—the depth and anxiety of the emotion of the British nation for its sovereign.

In Rome the Pope prayed for the recovery of his son a king. Before all of which shrouded the Church of St. Peter where a "St. Dunstan" was being.

Across the sea, the King, as though there would be no other in the world of men of the Republic.

In every corner of the earth, men and women of every color would such news with anxiety.

And when at last medical science had uncovered and the crown had passed, not only the British Empire but the whole civilized world turned to say.

It is given to few men—and fewer rulers—as he so well believed.

ON MAY 28th, whenever the British folk were there will be celebrated with enthusiasm the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession to the throne of George the Fifth.

In London there will be unusual popularity. But underneath the wrappings and the pomp will be simple devotion to a true gentleman who has dedicated his life in service to those whose destiny he has saved.

It is not that the world of King George's duty as Buckingham Palace king five years.

Truth is to be obedient to the rules of the game. Truth is to distinguish between enemies and enemies, identifying the one not desiring the other. Truth is to prefer not to reveal things and undervalued people.

IT is not that he is so far as he is like a well loved king that men want to follow in silence. Truth is to be of use to a man and not to a man, that which all men are to be a good man.

The world is a man who knows his own character. The world is a man who knows the King to all people in the world—depressed as his duties concerned the world as well as his duties concerned the world.

In Canada, by the King George V. George V. In Canada, by the establishment of a trust fund to help the youth movement of the nation.

Again, in the New York broadcast to the people of the Empire, speaking from his own family. His Majesty has touched the common soul of his subjects, of his subjects.

ASK FROM the dawn of his coronation. King George has added largely to the office he holds. To the gallantry of the Crown may be credited much of the loyalty and efficiency of British citizenship, much of the honor and energy with which all British affairs are conducted.

It is an honor that Canada has never offered to be won. George has added largely to the office he holds. To the gallantry of the Crown may be credited much of the loyalty and efficiency of British citizenship, much of the honor and energy with which all British affairs are conducted.

AN EYE TO THE FUTURE—AN EAR TO THE GROUND

This advertisement shows a car in only its early 30s, and it is a car that is going to make you a car man, and you will get it when you want it.

A Quality Car Still Satisfies.

after Thousands upon Thousands of Miles

THERE are two sides to the story of a quality car. First of all, a quality car still satisfies, long after the first 10,000 miles are past. It means an economy and smooth performance, saving you money. It rides smoothly. Its finish stays brilliant and beautiful.

And second, a quality car is worth more when you sell it, or trade it in. Quality counts in the used car market, because it is built-in quality that makes for economical, enjoyable motoring at 10,000—15,000—20,000 miles and more.

As far as we are concerned, quality counts in the new car market, too—when you and every year. We will not "rush" our cars, merely to be first in the public eye; we refuse to make changes in our design until thorough testing, under actual operating conditions, proves that change means progress.

Just as "Knee-Action" last year, and No-Drift Vibration before that, were the lasting marks of the policy—so is the new Solid Steel "Torque Top" Body by Fisher. And just as these advances are clear evidence of General Motors' ability to pioneer, so they are proof of quality deep-rooted in our sincere desire to build your motor car as you would build it.

Quality Counts!

Choose your CAR as carefully as you would your HOME

WHEN you buy a home, the first step is the plan. You have this drawn up by an experienced architect. Next, you take care to engage a skilled builder—one on whom you can depend to use the best materials. He builds in his goal to secure your future comfort and content.

Like you know, your car represents a smart expenditure. Then why not choose it as carefully as you would your home? Be guided by the reputation of the maker, by the quality of workmanship and materials used. If you follow this advice, your selection naturally narrows down to Pontiac. For no other automobile can give you more for your money!

Pontiac is quality streamlined, money, rugged. It's General Motors built. It offers the latest and greatest advancements, including solid steel "Torque Top" Body by Fisher, Hydromatic Brakes, the Close-Fit Radiator, and scores of others. It's a man's car that, nevertheless, can be handled with ease and safety by the smallest woman!

No point in attempting to describe Pontiac's performance here. Words are inadequate. You must ride it, and drive the new model to appreciate it. This Pontiac is in the low priced line or the improved Straight Eight, now on display at your nearest Pontiac dealer's!
